Germans Are Held in West-Austrians Make big Drive on Italy

The last week has seen some great changes on the fighting fronts in Europe and according to reports conditions are improving in favor of the Allies, but the warning is given that a very critical state of affairs exists and will for some time.

On the Noyon-Montdidier front in France the enemy is being held and the Parisians are breathing much easier. The Germans have suffered such severe drubbing that it is thought by the best qualified spokesmen on military matters that it will take them six weeks or two months to make another big drive on Paris. Meanwhile they will look elsewhere for a chance. This brings to an end a five days attack, which, while the briefest of any of his attempts to reach Paris, has been the most suicidal for him of any. The Allies of course have also suffered greatly but not to the extent of the Germans.

THE AUSTRIAN DRIVE

The Austrians commenced another drive along the whole Italian front on Sunday, particularly in the Asiago sector, using tremendous masses of infantry to break through. The Italians and the Allied contingents were ready for them and they were unable to make any advance and are being heavily slaughtered. Very hard fighting is still in progress and it is expected will be for some days.

The failure of the Austrians to do what they expected is considered as a severe defeat for them and it is reported that the Germans are getting ready to rush large numbers of troops to their aid as conditions in Austria are such that another defeat for them will precipitate great internal troubles.

The United States now has 800,000 men in France and the report states that they will have 1,000,000 over by July.

England has called up her men up to 50 years of age no matter what occupation they follow, agriculture or other industry.

The submarine off the U. S. Atlantic coast has sunk two more vessels, both Norwegian. Both vessels were sunk ninety miles off the Virginia coast.

The British Board of Trade figures for the month of May show an increase in imports of $182,720,950 over the same period of last year. It looks as though the submarines are being held.

Sea Control Means Victory

Command of the Sea Upon Which the Existence of the British Empire Depends

Germany has raised about her a ring of implacable enemies upon the sea, whose strength continues to increase, and who are pledged utterly to destroy German sea-power. Give them time enough and they will certainly do it. Now the position of Germany is that she won the war on land she would still be beaten at sea. And, deprived of the use of the sea, of what use would be her territorial gains? They would be valuable, but they would not serve to restore the overseas commerce upon which depends her ability to trade. The rulers of Germany suffer under no illusions on the subject. Their dread lest the German people should learn the true state of affairs is so extreme that they are compelled to exaggerate the losses inflicted by submarine warfare, the exaggeration on one occasion reaching 70 per cent. error. So far as this country is concerned, it is our part, first and last, to regain and to maintain that command of the sea upon which the existence of the British empire depends, which is only now disputed by the pirate submarine, and for which no sacrifice can be refused.—London Morning Post.

Dust Causes Asthma. Even a little speck too small to see will lead to agonies which no words can describe. The walls of the breathing tubes contract and it seems as if the very life must pass. From this condition Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy brings the user to perfect rest and health. It relieves the passages and normal breathing is firmly established again. Hundreds of testimonials received annually prove its effectiveness.

At Pool of Bethesda

An English reservist, who was living near Sudbury, Ont., before the war, writes to his old neighbors from the Pool of Bethesda, Palestine: "I tasted the water—not too clean!—and in order to do it had to descend lots of steps, as the well is deep down in the ground. At the entrance one may, if one wishes, read in seventy-seven different languages the account of the healing described in the fifth chapter of John—a quite sufficient choice, one would imagine, but 'Taffy' thought differently, and not finding his mother-tongue represented, promptly wrote it all out in Welsh from his own Testament. So now there are seventy-eight different versions for visitors to choose from."

Kindness

Private Simpkins had returned from the front, to find that his girl had been walking out with another young man, and naturally asked her to explain her frequent promenades in the town with the gentleman.
"Well, dear," she replied, "it was only kindness on his part. He just took me down every day to the library to see if you were killed."

Bound to Win

Going to March to Berlin if It Takes 5,000,000 Men to Do It

It may take all America to win the war, but it will be on hand when the crisis comes. This country doesn't entertain for one moment any doubt as to what the result will be. It realizes its power and will make it count when Germany seems to gain a point. Why, we haven't begun to fight yet. We are still getting ready and are yet far short of our determination to get ready. We are going to march to Berlin if it takes 5,000,000 men to do it, and we will provide them all they need to eat while on the way. This republic is getting more in earnest every day, and it will keep on until the kaiser and his cruel frightfulness are driven back to the shades of Prussia to stay and rot. That is the sort of determination which rules this republic, and it is growing stronger every day. We may suffer some reverses, but they will cut no figure in the final solution.—Ohio State Journal.

The Foremost British Airman

Bugle Boy Is Now Britain's Star Among Aviators

Every honor for valor that a British officer can gain has been won by Capt. James Byford McCudden, the star British airman, who has just been awarded the Victoria Cross. His other distinctions, in the order of their award, include the Distinguished Service Order, a bar to the D.S.O., the Croix de Guerre, Military Cross, bar to the Military Cross, and the Military Medal.

McCudden, who is now twenty-three years old, entered the British army as a bugler eight years ago. He went to France as a private in the original expeditionary force. Having had some experience in the air he was pressed into service as an observer at Mons and gave valuable information of enemy movements during the retreat. From a sergeant he was promoted to a commissioned rank as an observer and quickly won fame for his handling of a machine gun in aerial fighting. Since he has had more than one hundred flights without ever having sustained a wound.

Fifty-four German airplanes have been accounted for by Capt. McCudden. Of these forty-two have been destroyed, nineteen of them on the British side of the lines. On two occasions the British star has totally destroyed four two-seater enemy airplanes on the same day, and on the last occasion all four machines were destroyed in the space of one hour and thirty minutes. With his squadron he has participated in seventy-eight offensive patrols, and on at least thirty other occasions he has crossed the enemy lines alone, either in pursuit of or in quest of enemy airplanes.

"This officer is considered," says the official London Gazette, "by the record which he has made, by his fearlessness and by the great service he has rendered to his country, deserving of the very highest honor."

A Discouraging Query

A pretty girl at an evening party was bantering a genial bachelor on his reasons for remaining single.
"No-o-o, I never was exactly disappointed in love," he said. "I was what you might call discouraged. You see, when I was very young I became very much enamored of a young lady of my acquaintance. I was mortally afraid to tell her of my feeling, but at length I screwed up my courage to the proposing point. I said, 'Let's get married.' And she said, 'Why, who'd have us?'—Pearson's.

Deadly Bolshevik Oratory

National Kitchens in England

England is to have national kitchens. Public baths and park buildings will be turned into kitchens and town halls into dining halls; street cars and omnibuses will carry the finished product to thousands of small distributing stations. Varied meals will be provided for everybody at the lowest possible price and there will be special invalid kitchens.

A GOOD DIGESTION

Depends Upon Keeping the Blood Rich, Red and Pure

To be able to eat what you want and to digest it properly is a priceless blessing. Good digestion is not appreciated until you lose it. Then you cannot afford to experiment, for strong medicines are hard on weak stomachs. If you have indigestion do not be persuaded into believing you can cure yourself by the use of pre-digested foods or so-called stomach tonics. There is no tonic for the stomach that is not a tonic for every part of the body. It is through the blood that the stomach gets its power to assimilate and digest food, and as the blood goes to every part of the body and improvement in its condition not only results in strengthening the stomach but every organ in the body. Rich red blood is absolutely necessary to good digestion. If your stomach is weak and you are troubled with sour risings in the throat, a feeling of pressure about the heart, or nausea after eating, try the tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. So many dyspepsias have been cured by this medicine that every sufferer from stomach trouble should try it. You will soon know the joy of good digestion and enjoy better health in other ways if you give this medicine a fair trial. Mr. Fred. J. Kendall, Darlin Ave., Toronto, says:—"For upwards of five years I was a great sufferer from indigestion, which gradually undermined my general health, leaving me in a weak and anaemic condition. I spent considerable money with one doctor and another, but failed to receive any lasting benefit, and had become quite discouraged. One day my wife urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills but I thought it would be the same old story. But she had so much faith in them that she got me a box, and to please her I began taking them. By the time the box was finished, I noticed a slight improvement, and I continued taking them and soon found myself gaining. I could sleep better and my appetite improved, without the distressing symptoms that had previously followed eating. I think I look in all about a dozen years, and today I am a stronger man than I ever was in my life. When I began the use of the pills I weighed 143 pounds while now I weigh 167. You may use this letter as you choose, hoping it may reach some poor discouraged sufferer as I was."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Too Little Exercise

THE necessity of using medicine to regulate the action of the liver, kidneys and bowels is largely due to the changed conditions of life during recent years.

Our fathers lived a life of activity in the open air. If they ate heartily they had sufficient exercise to keep the liver and bowels active and to thereby remove the poisonous waste from the body.

To-day we get too little exercise and too little fresh air. The food we eat is more concentrated and artificial. The result is much discomfort and the development of serious disease from constipation of the bowels and torpid condition of the liver. Kidney disease, rheumatism, lumbago, backache—all have their beginning in the inactivity of the liver and bowels.

The great secret of keeping in health is to look to the regularity of these filtering and eliminating organs, and Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills is the most satisfactory medicine obtainable for this purpose.

If you read the reports appearing in this paper, from time to time, from persons who have used this treatment with good results, you will find that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are effective where ordinary medicines fail. This success is due to their combined action on the liver, kidneys and bowels. One pill a dose at bedtime as often as is necessary to keep the bowels in healthful action, will also ensure the regularity of the liver and kidneys and thereby keep the blood pure and the system free from the accumulating poisons which cause disease and suffering.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers or Edmanson Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint. 9

Canada is about to gather her available resources for the last great drive that shall send the Hun reeling from the conflict into which he plunged the civilized world four years ago. She proposes to lay the foundation for this ultimate effort by taking an inventory of the manpower of the nation, and has set aside Saturday, June 22nd, as the day upon which all persons, male and female, of sixteen years and over, must register and make declaration as to the useful kinds of work in connection with which their services might be utilized.

The information that registration will provide will constitute a solid basis upon which the Government can intelligently formulate and put into execution all its war policies. After registration the Government will have a clearer understanding of the capabilities of the country for production; they will know how much of Canada's human energy is being uselessly expended. Knowing all these things they will be in a position to bring her full weight to bear upon the issue in the disposal of which every ounce of energy will count.

The registration of 5,000,000 men and women in one day is in itself an enormous task, but Canadians can be relied upon to meet it as they have met every major task imposed by the War.

Y. M. C. A.'s Reply To CriticismsNEVER SOLD IN ITS CANTEENS
ARTICLES SENT AS GIFTS TO SOLDIERS

In view of recent criticisms and questions from various sources the following statement was issued by Mr. G. H. Wood, Chairman of the National Council of the Y.M.C.A., following a conference of Y.M.C.A. leaders on Friday, May 31st:

"The Y.M.C.A. is in the canteen business solely as a medium of service to the soldier, and devotes every dollar of net profit made to that service. There is not, nor ever has been, a dollar made in its military canteen which has been used in any way than in its service to soldiers. The total cost of maintaining its service greatly exceeds the amount of net profits from its canteens, and the balance is met from the subscription funds raised in Canada."

"During the year 1917 the total cost of maintaining the Y.M.C.A. service to the Canadian soldiers in England and France, including very large items for free drinks, cinemas and concerts, athletic supplies, writing materials, libraries, etc., was two and a half times as much as the net profits from its canteens. In other words, for every dollar of net profits made in its canteens, the Y.M.C.A. has had to secure by subscription another dollar and a half to meet the requirements of its entire service overseas."

"The prices charged in the canteens are governed by the military authorities, and the Y.M.C.A. is not allowed to undersell the Expeditionary Force canteens in France."

"In France the books of the Y.M.C.A. are checked monthly, in so far as all canteen operations are concerned, by the army field cashiers. These, as well as the accounts in England, are audited regularly by a chartered accountant, and these audited statements, now issued every six months, are sent to all the officers commanding and are posted in the Y.M.C.A. huts for the information of the soldiers. In addition to this, a combined English and French audited statement is issued every six months."

"A military board of three officers appointed by Lieut.-Gen. Sir Arthur Currie, conducted an examination of the whole work of the Y.M.C.A. in the Canadian Corps in France, during the month of March, and reported that its financial operations were satisfactory, and that its business was being efficiently conducted."

"It is scarcely necessary for the Y.M.C.A. to affirm that it has never sold in its canteens articles sent as gifts to the soldiers. It is impossible for such a thing to happen as a Y.M.C.A. transaction. In its service of exchanging money, the Y.M.C.A. does not reap any benefit, but gives the soldiers exactly what it receives from the bank."

"In connection with Y.M.C.A. libraries in France, a small deposit is asked when a book is taken out, and refunded when it is returned. This is done to ensure the return of the books for further circulation. No charge is made for the loan of a book."

"The thousands of letters which have been coming into the homes of Canadian boys overseas, who have enjoyed the benefits of the Y.M.C.A., are among the best testimonies to its work, and the Y.M.C.A. welcomes the suggestion that they be referred to for their opinions and experiences."

"No one is in a better position than Lieut.-Gen. Sir Arthur Currie to speak as to whether the Y.M.C.A. is a genuine benefaction and service."

SOME INSIDE HISTORY REGARDING THE WAR SCHEMES OF GERMANY

BEHOLD THE KAISER AS A DISAPPOINTED PACIFIST

Direct and Conclusive Evidence is Furnished by Residents of Enemy Country Showing How the Kaiser Insisted on Precipitating the World War

Kaiser Wilhelm's sorrowful ejaculation as he surveyed the scenes of destruction near Cambrai recalls his frequent saying after the battle of the Marne: "I did not will this war." Now he exclaims: "What have I not done to preserve the world from these horrors!" Students of the Kaiser's psychology will not fail to note that he takes up the role of peace-loving and melancholy philosopher when things are not going well for the German arms. A month ago he was sounding a jubilant note. He stood then at one of "the great moments in history," when the German sword was about to hew all his enemies in pieces. But these deep moral contradictions are of less interest than the question of fact which the Kaiser raises. We know a great deal more now than we did in July, 1914, about what he did and failed to do to prevent the world war.

On the heels of Prince Lichnowsky's revelations, there came a statement by another prominent German which threw a lurid light on the Kaiser's professions. This man is Dr. W. Muhlton, a director of Krupp's at the outbreak of the war. For reasons that will seem obvious after his public assertions, he is now living in Switzerland. His disclosures give us another first-hand witness to the truth that the German government, far from seeking to avert the war, welcomed and promoted it, and that the Kaiser was not over-ruled by the military clique, but was himself eager for the trial of strength. If there was to be a war, the Krupps were bound to be told of it in advance. In the middle of July, 1914, Director Muhlton met Helfferich in Berlin. The latter told him that the Austrians had been consulting the Kaiser. They were going to send an ultimatum to Serbia, the terms of which they submitted to the Kaiser and which he emphatically approved. He also assured them that he would mobilize if Russia did, and that this would mean instant war. Dr. Muhlton asked if it would mean a world war, and Helfferich replied that he feared so, but that possibly the conflict might be localized.

Director Muhlton went back to Essen and at once told what he had heard to Herr Krupp von Bohlen. But that officer of the great war plant already knew it. He had had it a few days before from the Kaiser himself in strictest secrecy. This time, the Kaiser had assured Krupp von Bohlen, people would see that he did not retreat. The allusion was probably to the Morocco affair, when Germany threatened to fight but finally backed down. Herr Krupp von Bohlen, according to Dr. Muhlton, was very emphatic upon the Kaiser's determination to have a war over Serbia. "The Kaiser's repeated insistence that this time nobody would be able to accuse him of indecision had been almost comic."

So Dr. Muhlton, quoting his colleague, Krupp von Bohlen. Is he telling the truth? The matter was brought up in the Reichstag. But the government spokesman, Vice-Chancellor von Payer, contented himself with stating that "the two highly placed gentlemen" adduced by Dr. Muhlton—mean Helfferich and Krupp von Bohlen—had written that he was a man suffering from nervous disease. There was no denial at all of what this nervously depressed man had stated. And shortly afterwards a correspondent of the Paris Humanite interviewed Dr. Muhlton in Switzerland. Instead of a nervous wreck, he found him a man of "balanced brain" and "sound judgement." Moreover, Dr. Muhlton gave to the correspondent a copy of a letter which he had sent to the German Chancellor, Bethmann-Hollweg, on May 7, 1917. In it he spoke of the "grievous sins" committed by Germany in the war, and wrote as follows regarding her rulers:

"Since the first days of 1917 I have abandoned all hope as regards the present leaders of Germany. The offer of peace with no indication of our war aims, the unrestricted submarine war, the deportations from Belgium, the systematic destruction in France, the torpedoing of English hospital ships, have so discredited the imperial government that I am convinced that they are forever disqualified from elaborating and concluding a just and sincere entente. They may modify themselves personally, but they cannot remain the representatives of the German cause."

This testimony from within is, of course, exceptional. Standing by itself, it could not be accepted as conclusive proof. But it falls in with a thousand other things which have been coming to light. It is confirmed by the unquestioned evidence of Prince Lichnowsky. It goes well with the statement of the foreign minister, von Jagow, that he did not at the time know of the ultimatum to Serbia. Apparently, it was carefully kept from him so that Germany could say that she was officially unaware of it. But the Kaiser knew of it; and von Jagow found, when he was finally called in, that "the Kaiser had so committed himself that it was too late, and there was nothing more to be done."—New York Post.

The American "Apathist"

We Have the Replica of This Individual in Canada

Apathy! I'm beginning to think that your apathist (to coin a word) is pretty nearly as bad as your pacifist. You can at least pillory the pacifist, plant the red flag over him, and warn straight-out Americans to give him a wide berth. But your apathist! What, in heaven's name, are you going to do with this chap? He isn't a traitor, he isn't a false propagandist, he isn't even a willful obstructionist. He is simply a human invertebrate—a dead weight in a war-working community that has got to be juggled along because there's nothing else to do with him.

I know Mr. Apathist and you know him. As a rule he hasn't any one of his immediate blood in the army—he and his are all safe, sound, and snug. You seldom see him at a patriotic rally, or on a committee to boost the Red Cross, or in a Y.M.C.A. "over there" drive, or buying smokes for Sammies. But he buys Liberty Bonds—yes! And War Savings Stamps and Thrift Stamps. Good business, that; you can't lose. But these other things they are begging for—there's plenty of time to come across for them when we really begin to fight. And, you know, it's not so sure that we will have to fight. Something is likely to happen before we get to the firing line—peace, or a revolution in Germany, or something. And, anyway, the government is running this show, and taxing the life out of us to do it. The government doesn't need my help. I'm just one in a hundred million. Let the fellows who have the money and time to spare do the shouting. I've got all I can attend to keeping up with my growing business.

You've heard Mr. Apathist talk just like that. I have, anyway. He has ten tons of coal in his cellar when the state fuel administrator says the limit is two; there are a hundred pounds of sugar in his pantry when the grocer is allowing but three pounds a week to a family of four; he burns up gasoline joy riding on Sundays when the government begs the people to help conserve the supply on hand.

What's the matter with this chap? I'll tell you. He's afflicted with mental myopia. He is devoid of imagination. He is a materialist, a hedonist, an unspiritual clod of clay—self-centered as a turtle buried in the mud. He believes only in what is jammed up to his nose—what he can taste, touch, smell and hear. He can't visualize this war; he couldn't do it if he was furnished with a telescope that would give him a close-up of the bloody trenches in Flanders, or an audiphone that would let him hear the roar of the great guns. The moment he put the instruments aside he would lapse into his former sense of aloofness from the scene. Three thousand miles away! What interest could he have in a thing so remote? If the Germans were fighting on the next block—why, yes! He'd grab his gun and go out with the neighbors to head 'em off. He'd fight for his home with any man. But across the seas!

That's your apathist! Dear Lord, how I would like to put a pin in every chair he sits in—in every bed he lies in—in every shoe he walks in—in every hat he sticks his head in. If I could only prod him, body and soul, until he was all awake and alive, and would pitch in and do a he-man's work for the holiest cause humanity's sun ever flamed on. If I only could!—Thos. Addison in the New York Outlook.

Irish Conscription

An American Opinion Is Unhesitatingly Given on a Vexed Question

There has long been a great sympathy with Ireland in the United States. That old sympathy, so often invoked and played upon by demagogues in congress eager to exploit it in votes, should not be misunderstood by men in Ireland who count upon American opposition to that conscription to which the Lloyd George government is committed.

The American attitude toward England and the English has radically changed. One with us in the last stand for freedom, fighting and enduring with a steady courage beyond praise, the English, like the French, the Scotch, the Welsh, the Irish not seduced by Sinn Feinism, the Canadians, the Australians, are our brothers. Moreover, the pro-German and anti-American demonstrations of the Sinn Feiners, their insults to our sailors and our flag, have not made Americans any more partial to Irish slackers in Ireland.

Why should Irishmen in Ireland longer be allowed to shirk their just part in the war of free civilization?—From the New York Times.

The Last Line

In what was perhaps the great single emergency of the war so far the British war cabinet made two momentous decisions, namely:

(1) To throw the last line of British reserves against the German tide and

(2) Henceforth to trust the United States to keep the allied man power good.

We are now the last line of reserves. There is no other great source of men.—From the New York Tribune.

PAIN? NOT A BIT!
LIFT YOUR CORNS
OR CALLUSES OFF

No humbug! Apply few drops then just lift them away with fingers.

This new drug is an ether compound discovered by a Cincinnati chemist. It is called treezone, and can now be obtained in tiny bottles as here shown at very little cost from any drug store. Just ask for treezone. Apply a drop or two directly upon a tender corn or callus and instantly the soreness disappears. Shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can lift it off, root and all, with the fingers.

Not a twinge of pain, soreness or irritation; not even the slightest smarting, either when applying freezone or afterwards.

This drug doesn't eat up the corn or callus, but shrivels them so they loosen and come right out. It is no humbug! It works like a charm. For a few cents you can get rid of every hard corn, soft corn or corn between the toes, as well as painful calluses on bottom of your feet. It never disappoints and never burns, bites or inflames. If your druggist hasn't any freezone yet, tell him to get a little bottle for you from his wholesale house.

The imperative present need of the allied armies on the western fighting front is—"more men!" The call comes across the Atlantic in every soldier's son's letter home, in every story of the titanic struggle now being waged, in every stirring battle-cry of commanders to their troops. The summons of these things grips. It is real and direct. It is man to man. Diplomatic delicacy may stifle official appeals. International courtesy must avoid seeming mandatory messages. But such considerations do not interfere with potent, human, Macedonian cry from those who are there—"Come over . . . and help us."

The heroic fellows who fight wonder 'with their backs to the wall'—fight long, sleepless days and nights, fight till exhaustion overcomes them—need reinforcements, and need them now. This is the call to Canada—and this is the call to our big American comrade. Canada is preparing in parliament to do her part to meet that call, and meet it immediately. But her part is now necessarily limited. She must look, and does look—as do the allied armies—for a great and noble response from Cousin Jonathan.

It is not a call for a huge army next year. It is a call for steady streams of infantry reinforcements now. The Hun is not waiting. He is recklessly and ruthlessly gambling in blood for world domination. He proposes to conquer now. This is the time of testing—this is the day of decision. The United States has been our splendid ally for a year. The inspiration and support of her co-operation are incalculable. Already an effective army of fine fellows is doing its heroic part in the conflict. They, too, call for more men. For the next few months—the vital few months—while Britain is effecting her new man-power levy, let Canada and the United States pour in their battalions of virile and sinewy sons of the new world to help hold the old line of liberty and civilization.—Toronto Globe.

IX. The False Trail

When Foster got up next morning he had made his plan, and spent ten minutes with John when there was nobody else about. The old fellow understood his orders, and although he listened with formal deference, the faint twinkle in his eyes showed his approval. After breakfast Foster asked Featherstone to come out on the terrace and while they walked about indicated the line he thought it best to take.

Featherstone agreed, but expressed some misgivings.

"There may be danger in putting Daly on the track, and after all I'm only delaying a crisis that must be faced."

"The longer it's delayed, the better; something may happen in the meantime," Foster replied. "Then, you see, the track is false. When the fellow finds you obstinate, he'll try to get hold of Lawrence, particularly as he got some money from him before; but as he believes Lawrence is in England, he'll have some trouble. The advantage is that he won't be able to bother you while all his time and energy's occupied by following me."

"That is so," said Featherstone thoughtfully. "But you may find it difficult to get away from the rogue, since you must give him some kind of a clue."

Foster laughed. "I don't mind the difficulty, sir. In fact, I think I'm going to enjoy the chase."

"There's a point that must be thought of. If he goes to the police when he can't find Lawrence, it would be awkward for you and I should be not better off than I am now."

"It's unlikely," Foster replied. "So long as he sees the smallest chance of extorting money he'll keep his secret. The reason's obvious."

"Well," said Featherstone, with feeling, "you are doing us a service we can't repay. I frankly don't like the plan, because it can only work at your expense, but it will give us time and I can think of nothing else."

Foster left him with a feeling of pleasant excitement. He was doing his host a favor and this was something, but the adventure appealed to him for other reasons. He had, in Canada, found scope for his energy in profitable work, but there was a reckless vein in him, and it was exhilarating to feel that he could now follow his bent without being hampered by the necessity for making the undertaking pay. After all, there was not much enjoyment in what one did for money, and he thought he was going to get some amusement out of the game. Still, he did not want to leave the Garth. Alice had treated him with a quiet friendliness he valued and he began to hope he was making some progress in her good opinion. It was, however, comforting to feel that he was going to save her pain, and for the rest of the day he was conscious of a cheerfulness he tried to hide in view of the anxiety the others had to bear.

When it got dark John put Lawrence's travelling bag under a small table near the door in the hall and arranged the cloth so that it hung over and covered part of the bag but did not hide it altogether. He took some trouble, and when he was satisfied it looked as if the bag had been carelessly placed where it would be out of sight but ready to be picked up quickly if its owner meant to leave the house in a hurry. Moreover, if anybody thought it worth while to look under the table the letters L. F. could be distinguished and Lawrence's name was engraved upon the lock. Foster, who had learned from the railway guide when Daly would arrive, had arranged that he should be left alone for a minute or two in the hall. If the fellow made good use of the time, so much the better.

After putting on a grey waterproof leggings and strong boots, Foster stood at the open door of his room until he heard Daly come in. There was silence for the next minute, and then footsteps echoed along a passage as the visitor was taken to the library, where Featherstone would receive him, and Foster pulled out his watch. As there was no hotel in the neighborhood and Daly would not expect to be asked to stay, he no doubt intended to return to the station across the moor, where he could catch the last train. Allowing for the long drive, he could not stop long at the Garth; but Foster must give Featherstone time enough. The latter had a rather difficult part, because he must allow Daly to state his terms and not reject them until the last moment. He was too honest and too proud to dissimulate well, but he was not a fool and there was much at stake.

At length, Foster stole quietly down the stairs, and smiled as he remarked that the cloth on the small table had been pulled aside. This had been done cautiously, but a fold that overhung the edge was not in quite its former position. Then he picked up the bag and went out, making noise enough to be heard in the library as he went to the hall door. When he went down the steps he saw the lights of the car that had brought Daly glimmer on the wet gravel of the drive. The back of the car was next him, for it had been turned around ready to start. Then Featherstone's car came up quietly, and Foster was getting in when he stopped and felt his heart beat as a slender figure appeared on the terrace. He turned, with his foot on the step, and waited until Alice came up.

"I couldn't let you go without a last word of thanks," she said. "It is splendid! We can't forget."

"I believe I'm going to have an amusing trip," Foster replied. "Then, you see, the Garth is a remarkably nice place to come back to, and there's the pleasure of looking forward to my return. But I'm unselfish enough to hope I won't have that satisfaction all to myself."

Alice smiled, but there was something very friendly in her look and her voice was unusually soft.

"You can always be sure of your welcome and we will miss you when you are away. Now I very sincerely wish you good luck."

Foster was seldom theatrical, but felt the occasion justified his doing something unusual. John, who had already grasped the wheel, had his back to them, and he took the girl's hand, which rested on the rail, and kissed it. She made a little abrupt movement, and he thought he saw a tinge of color in her face, but she did not look angry and he felt a strange thrill.

"Make as much noise as you can," he said to John.

The car backed across the rattling gravel, and the girl's figure faded into the gloom; then John turned the wheel and they shot forward down the drive. The lights of the other car vanished, there was a splash as they swung into the wet road, and Foster pulled the rug around him when he had struck a match and noted the time.

"You needn't hurry her too much," he said. "If I catch the train, by about a minute, it is all I want."

"Very good, sir. If I may remark, the other's a powerful car."

"I don't think they'll try to overtake us until we're near the station," Foster answered with a laugh. "But we can't allow it then."

"No, sir," said John. "I quite understand."

Where "Thirteen" Is Lucky

Is "thirteen" unlucky. President Wilson is "a believer in the power of thirteen." There were thirteen original states in the American Republic, and the national flag consisted of thirteen stars and stripes. The seal of the United States has thirteen arrows and thirteen stars. The American eagle has thirteen tail and thirteen wing feathers. The national motto, "E pluribus unum," contains thirteen letters.

Dominion Emblem

Botanist Delegated to Recommend National Flower

The Dominion of Canada is looking for a national flower emblem. Prof. John Macoun, Dominion botanist, has been delegated to recommend a flower that will be acceptable to all the people in all the provinces. The flower, it is considered, should be one that is found everywhere, one that has beauty or utility and which could be made a fit subject for patriotic song.

People from all over Canada are sending suggestions to Prof. Macoun. Among these is R. H. McDonald, of Winnipeg, who has written recommending the adoption of the orange red lily, a flower that seems to grow everywhere. It will soon be flouting its vivid orange against the no less vivid green of prairie ridges in this province. It also adorns the stony pasture hills, of the east and the rolling foothills of the west.

Other flowers which are being mentioned are the omnipresent golden-rod. This flower, however, is common all over the continent and has something of the nature of a weed, although of great utility as one of the best honey plants.

The wild rose, very common on the prairie, is also found in other provinces, but the fact that it is the emblem of England spoils its chances for being adopted here.

The choice of a national flower emblem is a difficult matter and there will, no doubt, be much opposition to the adoption of the orange red lily. The maple leaf, long accepted as the emblem of Canada, is not suitable, as the sugar maple is unknown in the prairie provinces. — Manitoba Free Press.

Found Relief.

Exploit's Harbor, Notre Dame Bay, Nfld. — That Dodd's Kidney Pills are upholding their enviable reputation in every corner of Canada is evidenced by the statement of Mrs. Samuel Milley, a well-known resident of this place.

"For several years I suffered from rheumatism and heart failure," Mrs. Milley states. "I used twenty-two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and my rheumatism is all gone. I know Dodd's Kidney Pills are a wonderful medicine. I recommend them to all my friends who are not feeling well, and they, like myself, speak highly of them."

"I used Dodd's Kidney Pills and got relief."

Dodd's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys. If the kidneys are weak and sick they cannot do their full work of straining the impurities out of the blood. The result is bound to be sickness and disease. To keep the kidneys sound is to lay the foundation of good health. Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills do not cure sick kidneys.

Stranger than fiction is the story told in London of how a missing will was discovered. In one house there was an old bureau which had been handed down as an heirloom for nearly a century. Making Cream Cheese

A Suitable and Remunerative Method of Marketing Cream

At some time or other during their career, most dairy farmers have experienced difficulty in marketing their produce satisfactorily. The trouble may have been because of a poor demand for the product, or the quality may have been below the standard.

The dairy produce from the Experimental Farm, Agassiz, B.C., has been sold in a number of different ways, one of the most satisfactory of which is in the form of cream cheese. The cream cheese appears to be the most popular soft cheese. It is easily made on the farm and requires very little special apparatus. The labor and cost of making and packing are small, so that the manufacturer is well suited for any producer within a reasonable distance from a market. It is a suitable and remunerative method of marketing cream. During cool weather we have been able to keep this cheese for a week or ten days without any appreciable deterioration in flavor, but as evaporation is going on continually, the cheese, unless originally made overweight, will not be up to the standard weight at the end of this time. It is therefore advisable to place it on the market as soon as possible after completion.

The market as yet is limited, but the demand appears to be increasing. We have sold during the past twelve months 5,420 of these cheeses in the city of Vancouver. The wholesale price obtained is 15c each, which amounts to $813 for the product during the past year. Each cheese weighs six ounces and approximately ten dozen are now being manufactured weekly from 170 pounds of twelve per cent. cream. This brings a return of ninety cents per pound butterfat for the cream, with the whey retained for feeding purposes.

The shape of the cheese is cylindrical, from one to one and a half inches deep and three inches in diameter. When moulding, the cheese is pressed into a cheesecloth cover and when ready for shipment is increased in a neat cardboard carton. It is a cheap cheese and a convenient size for table use. Picnickers have found it a suitable substitute for meat as a filling for sandwiches. It is also found to be very delicious and palatable when served with lettuce, celery, or any of the various kinds of vegetable salad.

The method of manufacture is concisely described in Exhibition Circular No. 23, which may be obtained for the asking from any of the Experimental Farms. — Experimental Farms Note.

Soldiers' Rations Reduced

The shortage of wheat in France has become so serious that the bread ration of the French soldiers has been reduced. 18,000,000 bushels of wheat were promised Europe from North America per month. Since January 1, the shortage has been 36,000,000 bushels, according to the Hon. Everett Colby, senator for New Jersey, in his speech delivered at Ottawa the other day.

Junker Revenge

Strikers' children are not to be fed this summer by Prussian land barons, who have announced that this year they will extend no hospitality to underfed town children from any districts wherein munition strikes occurred in January. The Socialist press points out that things in Germany have thus come to such a pass that children, unless their parents are "Hohenzollern to the core and Pan-German in politics," are to be allowed to starve.

OUR DEFENSE

In the spring we may be attacked at any moment. Toxic poisons pile up within us after a hard winter, and we feel "run-down," tired out, blue and discouraged. This is the time to put our house in order—cleanse the system and put fresh blood into our arteries. You can obtain an alternative extract from Blood root, Golden Seal, Stone and Queen's root, Cherry bark, rolled into a sugar-coated tablet and sold by most druggists, in fifty-cent vials, as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This blood tonic, in tablet or liquid form, is just what you need for "Spring Fever," for that lack of ambition. It will fill you full of vim, vigor and vitality.

LINDSAY, ONTARIO. — "When my little daughter was five years old her liver was so sluggish that I feared she might be troubled with habitual constipation. I had read a great deal about Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and decided to try it with her, giving her small doses. I found that it not only helped her liver but it also proved to be a splendid tonic, as well. It was such a splendid medicine that I would never hesitate to give it to her again if she needed it, and I take pleasure in recommending it to other mothers whose little ones seem to need a liver regulator and blood maker." — Mrs. LOUISA BEACH, Box 1135.

vice to the Canadian Army. The following is a statement made by him to a gathering of Canadian Y.M.C.A. officers in France, at which the General Secretary for Canada was present, on March 11th, 1918. General Currie has authorized this statement for publication:

"I came here this morning to see you at your work, and did not expect to be invited to speak. But now that I have this opportunity, I wish to bring to you the sincere thanks of all in the Canadian Corps for that work.

"One of the most important factors in winning a fight is the morale of the troops, and it is in helping to raise and maintain the morale at a high level that you have done so much. Canadians have the well-merited reputation of being good soldiers, and that is because their morale is good. This is only possible because they are well looked after, and this is where the Y.M.C.A. steps in and renders invaluable assistance by providing them with happiness and comfort. The men forget the sights of war, and seem to get a fresh start through your programs, your concerts, your sports, and your canteens. Your literature, music and concerts affords them the greatest possible pleasure and relaxation, your sports keep them happy and fit, and your canteens provide them with things they cannot get elsewhere at such reasonable rates.

"You are a wonderful help to us in beating the boche. It is not necessary for me to say this. It is apparent to all in the corps. But this year we are going to need your help more than ever. Heretofore, the Canadians have always been pushing forward and winning, and that is a great stimulus to men. This year we may be on the defensive, and that will require a maximum of moral courage and strength. If we let the moral sag, our efficiency will topple over.

"I believe the authorities should recognize the extremely valuable factor the Y.M.C.A. is in winning battles, and I think you ought to have the proper personnel and equipment necessary to carry on your work. If there be anything that I can do to impress your needs on the authorities, I will be only too glad to do it.

"In conclusion, I can only repeat what I said a few minutes ago—that the need of the work and the influence of the Y.M.C.A. is greater now than ever before, and, if such a thing be possible, you must all work even harder than in the past, though I do not see how, with the men and materials you have, you can do any more than you are doing. But if you can do so we need it and we appreciate it."

The Western Mutual Fire Insurance Co. have installed a big combination safe and cabinet. The safe arrived on Tuesday and took several men to unload it.

Sam. Arlenson has bought the Johnson town property of eleven acres. We understood that a good price was paid for the property. G. B. Sexsmith put the deal through.

Dr. Duncan, the dentist, left on Tuesday to attend the annual clinic of Canadian and American dentists to be held in Chicago next month and to visit relatives. He will be away on his vacation for one month.

Mrs. (Dr.) A. J. Weart and two little daughters, Margaret and Bessie, of Calgary, came up on Saturday to spend a few days visiting with Mr. and Mrs. C. Young and Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Osmond.

On Sunday evening, Rev. C. E. Bland was invited by the pastor of Knox Presbyterian church, Rev. D. Macgregor, an old pupil of Mr. Bland's, to address the congregation. Needless to say everyone present greatly enjoyed the services.

Miss Lily Coffey and Mr. Fred Coffey, of Calgary and Red Willow, respectively, motored to Didsbury from Calgary on Friday evening and after a short visit with Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Osmond left again on Saturday for Stettler by auto.

A team belonging to Mr. Shackleford ran away last Thursday and while no one was hurt the tongue of the wagon bored a hole in the corner of W. G. Liesemer's warehouse on the laneway. The force of the impact cracked the brick wall in several places besides making a good big hole.

The anniversary services of the Methodist church at Westdale held last Sunday were very interesting and also very largely attended. Rev. C. E. Bland, of Wesley church, Calgary, kept his large audiences interested from beginning to end of the services and those who were present felt that it was good to be there.

Readers will find an extra two pages inserted in this week's issue which contains a synopsis of the new acts passed at the last sitting of the Legislature. There is a lot of useful information regarding municipal government, school government and other laws pertaining to the general public in these pages and it would be wise to look them over.

The Mennonite Camp Meeting commences on July 5th and lasts to July 15th, at the old campgrounds, Didsbury. Besides other speakers Rev. N. W. Rich, of Rocky Ford, Colo., will be present to help conduct the services. Visitors coming from a distance should bring bedding. The shack and stove will be at the service of those wishing to prepare their own meals. Further information may be had by writing either Rev. D. C. Eby or Rev. H. Goudie, P. E.

Don't forget, you must register on Saturday next, June 22nd at the schoolhouse. To save yourself and the registrars you can secure your registration cards from any of the following before the day of registration so that you can fill them out except your signature and all you will then have to do is to sign them and hand them in to the registrars and receive your certificate. You can secure your cards from the following: G. B. Sexsmith, J. M. Reed, all the school teachers and at the Pioneer office.
